

GHS Student Earns Highest Rank In National Forensic League

John Wallace from Grandview High School has earned the degree of Premier Distinction, the highest student degree awarded in the National Forensic League (NFL) honor society. A degree of Premier Distinction reflects sustained excellence in classroom activities, competition rounds and service projects. Students may earn points in six separate categories: speech, debate, congress, service, district, and national. Only about 400 students out of NFL's 112,000 student members receive the degree of Premier Distinction each year—about 1/3 of 1 percent.

The National Forensic League (NFL) is a 501(c)3 not-for-profit honorary society whose mission is to promote high school and middle school speech and debate activities as a means to develop a student's essential life skills and values. More than 112,000 high school and middle school students, representing more than 2,900 schools nationwide, are currently building their communication, leadership, cognitive, and presentational skills as members. Since 1925, more than 1.3 million students have found their voice in the NFL. For more information, visit www.nflonline.org.
